One day Jane went to her favourite bakery. She wanted to buy a piece of cake for lunch. Mr Bell, the baker, made the best cakes in the world. She paid for her cake and went to the school yard. She started to eat the cake but it wasn't tasty. In fact, it was awful. At that moment her friend Sam came up to her. He saw the cake and said, "Is it from Mr Bell's bakery? I don't buy his cakes anymore. They taste very bad."

Suddenly they noticed Jim and Jack, two brothers. There was a strange smile on their faces when they saw the cake in Jane's hands. Jim and Jack liked to play stupid jokes on people.

"Something is wrong!" said Jane. "I have a plan." After school they watched the brothers and they were right. Jim and Jack went into the bakery shop. "Can we help you again, Mr Bell?" they asked. "Oh, please, thank you," answered Mr Bell.

Jenny and Sam looked into the kitchen window and saw the boys. The boys had salt on their hands and there was salt on the cakes. "Now I understand what happened to the cakes," said Jane. "They put salt in them." Mr Bell was very angry and shouted at Jim and Jack. "Go away from my shop and never come back!"

Dear _____,

Thank you for your letter.

How are you? I'm fine, but I have to study much after Christmas holidays.

My parents and I went to the USA for Christmas.

And where did you spend your holidays? (1)

We went to Los Angeles because my granny lives there and

I miss her very much. Where do your grandparents live? (2)

In Los Angeles it was warm and sunny. And what was the weather like at your place? (3)

In Los Angeles I wanted to swim in the ocean, but it was too cold. I like swimming very much. Do you like swimming? (4)

Sometimes we went to the restaurants and ate American food. I liked it very much. What is your favourite food? (5)

Sorry, but I must finish now.

Please write soon.

All the best,

Ben
